1. The number of beds that are occupied in district hospitals expressed as the proportion of all available bed days, calculated as the number of actual beds multiplied by the average days in a month (30.42).

2. New smear positive pulmonary tuberculosis cases that were cured as a proportion of all new smear positive pulmonary tuberculosis cases.

3. New smear positive tuberculosis cases that defaulted treatment as a proportion of all new smear positive tuberculosis cases.

4. The last six months for which data is available.

5. Proportion of children in the target area under 1 year of age who completed their primary course of immunisation coverage. The denominator is influenced by estimates of the national population under the age of 1, released by Statistics South Africa.

6. Proportion of children who received their second measles dose normally at 18 months, annualised.

7. Facilities audited by end of August 2011.

Mid-year progress

During the first half of 2011/12, key interventions to improve maternal and child health included: increasing antenatal coverage with a view to monitoring the health of both the mother and the baby during pregnancy; expanding immunisation coverage to protect South African children against vaccine-preventable diseases; and increasing coverage with pneumococcal conjugate and rotavirus, which protect children against pneumonia and diarrhoea (the leading causes of mortality among children). The prevention of mother-to-child transmission programme for HIV has proven to be very effective. During the reporting period, the Medical Research Council released the results of a study that showed that HIV transmission rates among six-week old babies had decreased from 10 per cent to 3.5 per cent nationally. This independent study shows that the efforts of the public health sector through the prevention of mother-to-child transmission programme are yielding the desired results. The HIV counselling and testing campaign also gained momentum in the first half of 2011/12, with more South Africans accepting counselling and undergoing testing. The tuberculosis cure rate of 69 per cent was consistent with the 70 per cent target for the first quarter of the year.

Efforts to strengthen health systems included progress with the comprehensive audit of public health facilities, the finalisation of the primary health care model, and hospital performance indicators such as bed utilisation rates and average length of stay being consistent with national targets.

Key challenges to performance that the department faced included low measles immunisation coverage (second dose); fewer babies were returned to the health facilities for the second dose of measles immunisation, compared to the set target and compared to those who received the first dose.
