Mid-year progress

The South African Police Service is responsible for providing a victim friendly service to all victims of crime. As at the end of the first quarter, 1 137 (100 per cent) police stations were rendering victim friendly services to all victims of crime. These services include ensuring privacy for victims through facilities such as victim friendly rooms; the referral of victims to medical, psychological and social services; and the provision of training to police personnel in order to enhance their competence in victim friendly service delivery. The operational environment for policing is characterised by the escalating number of public unrest incidents and the violent nature of these unrests. The number of public unrest incidents increased from 479 in the first quarter of 2013/14 to 568 at the end of the same period in 2014/15. Measures were implemented in the first quarter of 2014/15 to ensure that public order is effectively restored and that national stability is maintained. In this regard, the department was able to respond to all (100 per cent) medium to high risk incidents in the first quarter of 2014/15.

To address rural safety, a comprehensive rural safety strategy, which was approved by the Minister of Police in 2013, is currently being implemented. The strategy seeks to address rural safety as part of an integrated and holistic approach to day-to-day crime prevention, and by the end of the first quarter of 2014/15, the strategy was being implemented at 117 rural police stations, which represents higher performance than anticipated.

Until 2013/14, the calculation method for the detection rate, trial ready case dockets and the conviction rate for serious crimes included contact crime, contact related crime, property related crime, other serious crimes and crimes dependent on police action for detection. As of 2014/15, this calculation now excludes crimes dependent on police action for detection as these are now being measured separately. Taking into account this change in methodology for calculating these indicators, the planned targets for the performance indicators for 2014/15 therefore had to be revised as follows: 41 per cent for the detection rate, 68.5 per cent for trial ready case dockets for serious crimes and 87.61 per cent for the conviction rate for serious crimes.

The percentage of trial ready case dockets for serious crimes increased from 67.82 per cent as at the end of the first quarter in 2013/14 to 68.67 per cent in the same period in 2014/15. This improved performance was mainly due to enhanced capacity in the department's detective services environment, which allowed for the fast tracking and finalisation of investigations.
