FOREWORD

In tabling the 2002 Budget Minister Rasool undertook to "put our money where our mouth is". Stated differently, the Province has to keep to the promises made, providing quality delivery and ultimately improving the bottom line: rising per cap ita income levels (or a reduction in poverty and unemployment), closing disparity in income levels and achieving social equity.

Our Fiscal Policy 2003 - 2006 (WCFP) and the associated Expenditure Review further set the scene on what has to be achieved. T he latter analyses the service delivery frameworks and achievements of departments, and projects forwards all the work still to be done to achieve our targets as a proficient and responsive government.

Apartfromincorporatingthemainthemesfromthis Ex penditure Review, the Western Cape Fiscal Policy 2003 - 2006 also introduces a new concept, that of iKapa elihlumayo as the maindriving force behind Budget 2003 and also the synopsis of what the budget and indeed budgets over the next decade have to accomplish.

iKapa elihlumayo "a growing Cape" or in Afrikaans "die Kaap wat groei" has already been introduced by the Premier in his opening address to the Provincial Parliament on 21 February 2003, soit will not be further expanded on. Suffice to say that oughly translated, "hluma" means that the whole of the Province's efforts should be larger than the sum of its individual parts. The challenge that it introduces is to consistently broaden the economic base of the province through synergy and quality ins erviced elivery, reducing economic and social inequalities and creating employment via stimulatory incentives and the redirection of resources and opportunities to that part of the population that needs it most.
